INTRODUCTION.

THE FOUNDING OF A TOWN.

The civil and political history of Manchester, though the town had not been yet dignified with that time honored name, begins on the 23d of September, 1751, when at the call of John MacMurphy the "proprietors, freeholders and inhabitants" of Derryfield assembled at the inn of John Hall for the purpose of laying the foundation of self government. This was twenty days after the granting of the town charter, as given in the Records.

This charter had for its prime object the incorporation under suitable control of what had long been debatable ground—a tract of land three miles in width, lying along the east bank of the Merrimack river from the southern line of Suncook or Lovewell's town, now Pembroke, to the northern boundary of Litchfield, anciently known as Harrytown, but more recently (1735) included in the Massachusetts grant to Major Ephraim Hildreth and others under the name of Tyng township, so called in honor of the memory of Captain William Tyng, the leader of the "snow shoe expedition" to Lake Winnepesaukee, made in the winter of 1703-04. As this territory was not deemed of sufficient size to make a "respectable township," enough was taken from the adjoining towns to make up the desired area with the same unconcern that the claims of the sister province of Massachusetts had been ignored a few years before. Those were the days and this the scene of grants and counter-grants, of claims and contrary claims.

Thus the Derryfield charter covered about thirty-five square miles of country from the following sources: eight square miles of Tyng township, nine square miles of the northwestern portion of Londonderry, formerly Nutfield, and seventeen and three-fourths square miles of Chester, erstwhile called "the chestnut country." The name of Derryfield is claimed to have originated from the practice of stock owners of Londonderry in allowing their herds to graze on the clearings within its limits, and arising from the term "Derry's field."

The first town meeting was held in a house builded by John Hall, on what was the land of the late Isaac Huse, and with repairs and alterations from time to time stood until destroyed by fire in 1852.

There is no record of the number of votes cast at this meeting, though there were probably between fifty and sixty polls at the time.

The development of the town made the laying out of new highways and the improvement of those already built the foremost duty of the selectmen. The officers of the new town had barely entered upon their work before the people in all parts of the province were thrown into consternation over renewed depredations of the Indians, who had been giving the colonists a temporary rest in their long continued series of warfare. A hard fought struggle with the red men followed. If Derryfield escaped being the battleground, her inhabitants met with their proportion of perils and hardships on the war trail, until through the breaking of the French power in Canada a season of peace again settled upon the valley of the Merrimack.

The tenor of politics and something of the qualification necessary to gain the right of franchise is illustrated in the warning for the annual meeting March 5, 1753.

In 1756 is found the first vote on record taken relative to the matter of education, when it was voted not to raise any money for school. It was not until Dec. 25, 1781, that it was voted "to hire a schoolmaster 9 months this year comeing."

An era of prosperity had dawned upon the province, but unfortunately for the harmony and welfare of the new town two combative elements of human life made up the minds and sinews of the men of Derryfield. Its inhabitants consisted of two distinct races, the Scotch-Irish who had begun to settle within the bounds of its territory as early as 1720, with others following from time to time and settling mostly in the vicinity of Amoskeag falls and what has since become known as the Centre; while the grant of the Tyng township in 1735 called thirty or more families of the English colony of Massachusetts, the latter largely along the banks and at the mouth of Cohas brook. The Scotch Presbyterians, who somewhat outnumbered their contemporaries, were imbued with their set, vivid views of what constituted their civil and religious liberties, while the English in their belief were as rigid and dogmatical as they. We see the coloring of this difference of opinion coming to the surface almost immediately, for within a year of the granting of the charter a controversy arose relative to the building of a meeting-house and settling of a minister. It is not necessary to enter into the details here of the long and intense struggle of the rival factions, which nearly fills the town's record for fifteen years. The crisis of this contention was reached at the annual meeting in March, 1766, when two sets of town officers were elected, both boards acting zealously upon what they considered their duties. Inevitable confusion and excitement followed. Happily, good rather than evil, resulted from this untoward state of affairs. At last those of calmer judgment had begun to realize the folly of continuing this stubborn quarrel, which was having a disastrous effect upon the welfare of the town. Newcomers were not only being kept out, but many of the more conservative inhabitants were beginning to move away in disgust. For the preceding year the population had decreased over thirty. The taxes for 1757 had amounted to 106£ 6s 4d, while in 1766 it was only 40£ 17s.

In this dilemma a petition signed by seventeen prominent men from both factions was placed before the legislature, claiming irregularity in the recent elections and praying that a regular town meeting be granted, "that we may have town offecers choisen as the law directs and that our Confusion may be brought into order," etc. The request met with a favorable consideration and the March elections were declared null and void, and John Shepard, Esq., of Amherst, was empowered to issue a warrant for a new election, which he did immediately. At this meeting, August 13, the Scotch-Irish, under the lead of John Hall, were successful, he being elected again as clerk and one of the selectmen. The following year, however, a compromise was effected and officers elected from both parties, Mr. Hall retiring from active participation in the town's business. It was claimed by his rivals that he had misapplied some of the town's money, when a lawsuit ensued. This suit cost the town more than the amount of the taxes for that year, which were twenty-nine pounds, the case costing forty-three pounds. The matter was then ended by the town settling with Mr. Hall at "his own figures." The intensity of feeling was beginning to give way to calmer reason, though it is doubtful if the prime movers of the rival factions ever fully lost their bitterness of heart. Nearly twenty years had now elapsed since the incorporation of Derryfield, and its civil record was far from being satisfactory to those of more sober judgment. The population was decreasing rather than gaining, the valuation of property was depreciating, nothing had been done for a school and worse than nothing for the church. The people were generally dissatisfied, and the fortune of Derryfield was most assuredly at ebb tide.

In 1771 Governor Wentworth carried into effect his plan of having the province divided into five counties, named respectively Rockingham, Strafford, Hillsborough, Cheshire and Grafton. Derryfield was attached to the county of Hillsborough, thus designated in honor of the Duke of Hillsborough, England; Amherst being made Shire Town it was much easier for its inhabitants to attend court than it had been previously, when they had been compelled to go to Portsmouth. Courts of general session, common pleas and of probate were speedily established. September 28, of the same year, Captain John Stark was chosen the first grand juror from the town, while on the same day the names of Ensigns Samuel Moore and Samuel Stark were drawn as petit jurors. The Honorable Samuel Blodget of Goffstown was appointed a justice of the court of common pleas of the peace of the county.

The next act of importance occurred on the 16th of January, 1775, when we find the townspeople holding a special meeting and voting that the "town will bear their proportion of money that shall hereafter arise towards paying the cost of the General Congress as any other town in the province." So it will be seen that Derryfield was not backward in helping on the cause of the colonists financially, while she was not less prompt in lending the aid of her arms. It was a critical period in the history of the province and Derryfield, like her sister towns, stood in imminent danger of losing her civil existence. Alarmed at the outlook Governor Wentworth threw up his commission and the provincial government quickly collapsed, leaving the "little republics" to look out for themselves. The towns of Hillsborough county proved themselves equal to the situation, delegates being sent to Amherst at once and a county congress organized. The records for Derryfield show that on February 20, 1775, a special town meeting voted "to pay Captain John Stark two pounds, eight shillings Lawfull money, for his attandances at the Countey Congress."

The population of the town at this time was 285, consisting of 140 free males, 142 free females and three slaves. There were two free negroes in town, Cæsar Harvey and Cæsar Griffin. The tax list for this year (1775) contained 64 names, with an aggregate of taxes of 22£-7s-0d-2f, denoting, as Judge Potter says, "that the taxpayers were men of small means or that their taxes were very small." The highest individual tax in town was only nineteen shillings. A little matter connected with this period is worth mentioning, as it shows the growth of the gradual breaking away from old customs and forms and paving the way for the new system of government. In the warning for a special meeting December 5, 1775, instead of opening "In his Majestie's name," as had been the previous form, we find "In the name of America." Another step is seen in the call for a special meeting for October 23, 1776, when "State of New Hampshire" succeeds "Colony," as the latter had superseded "Province." Then in the warning for a meeting November 20 is made "In the name and virtue of the thirteen Younighted States of North America."

County rule so hastily improvised continued until January 5, 1776, when a more permanent organization was effected at Exeter by a convention of delegates from over the state. Derryfield had prepared for an emergency by chosing a committee May 15, 1775, "to look after the libertys of the people." This board consisted of Captain Alexander MacMurphy, Lieutenant James McCalley, Ensign Samuel Moore, Ebenezer Stevens and John Perham. The committee was the same in object as that ordered by the Provincial Congress within a month and called the Committee of Safety, and a forerunner of the last. On the 27th of June following their May election another meeting was held, when John Harvey, Lieutenant James McCalley, Samuel Boyd, Ensign Samuel Moore and John Hall were selected for the committee. Derryfield was classed with Goffstown for the purpose of electing a delegate to attend the congress at Exeter, and the election was made in the meeting-house of that town. The following were selected as a "Committee to Give Instructions": Col. John Goffe, Robert McGregor and David Starrett of Derryfield; Thomas Shirley, John Harvell and Captain James Carr of Goffstown. Committees of Safety were chosen in Derryfield as late as 1779.

As late as May 22, 1780, we find a vote taken towards raising soldiers for the American army, whatever cost arising from the work to be met by the town. Thus, through all the vicissitudes of the long and sanguinary struggle, whether with the men she sent to the brunt of battle, or with those who met the arduous duties at home, old Derryfield was never for a moment faithless to her trust. It seems fitting that this volume of Records should close at this time.

Province of Newhampshire at a meeting of the Proprietors freeholders and Inhabitants of Derry field assembled at the house of John Hall in said town at ther first meeting upon monday the twenty third day of September anno Dom: 1751 By his Excelencys Direction in the Charter* for Said town-

*This charter included nearly eighteen square miles of the south-west portion of Chester, about nine square miles of the north-west part of Londonderry, and the unincorporated strip of country lying between these towns and the Merrimack River known as Tyng Township, but more frequently spoken of as "Old Harry's Town." This contained about ten square miles, but one-fifth of this tract, called Harrysborough, by some oversight or design, was not taken in, but was added at a later period.

The action for the establishment of a separate township was first agitated by the inhabitants in the vicinity of Amoskeag Falls. Chester seems to have readily seconded the movement for the reason that it would remove along with a good slice of territory quite a number of Scotch Irish Presbyterians, who were particularly obnoxious to the Congregationalists living in the town. Already a religious warfare had begun, to be transplanted to other scenes by this act of incorporation of the new town. Londonderry was not in favor of losing so much of its territory, but made no united effort to check the current of events.—Ed.

*To the readers who may not understand the meaning of this term, which appears frequently in the records of those days, a brief description of the financial situation during those periods may not be out of place. Various expedients were resorted to by the colonists in order to effect means of business intercourse. The General Court of Massachusetts in 1690 issued what were known as "Bills of Credit" to the amount of seven thousand pounds. These bills circulated also in New Hampshire, and soon beginning to depreciate in value caused considerable hardship among the people. Late in 1709, in trying to meet the obligations incurred by border warfare, New Hampshire issued bills of credit to the amount of three thousand pounds. These were to be redeemed in five years, and this was the first emission of paper money in New Hampshire. In 1714, the year of their maturity, there was another emission, followed by others in 1717, 1722, 1724, 1725, 1726, 1727, 1729. These bills depreciated so rapidly in value that in 1741 the Government was able to pay only one fourth of the value expressed on their face, and this was more than they were worth on the market.

In an effort to remedy the evil, the Government issued in 1742, new bills, giving on the back the year and the value according to the old and the new rates. Thus all currency issued previous to this date became known as "Old Tenor," and that of 1742 and subsequent as "New Tenor." Another emission of bills to cover the expense of the Louisburg expedition was made in 1745, but the confusion and loss caused by these attempts to keep up a paper currency caused Parliament to prohibit the Governors of the colonies to allow the Colonial Assemblies to issue further bills, unless under extraordinary circumstances. During the French and Indian War, three issues were made, one of them, in 1756, known as "New Tenor, or Crown Point Bills." Fifteen shillings of this issue were equal to one dollar in specie. But these and following bills soon depreciated in value, and finally sterling money became the standard in value, paper passing as currency regulated in its valuation by the price of silver.—Ed.

The following petition and action of the General Assembly throw additional light on the controversy, and it is thought of sufficient importance to insert here.—Ed.

To his excelency Benning Wintworth Esq Governor & Commander In Chief of His Majestyes Provence of New Hampshir the honnorable his Majestys Councell and House of Representatives In General Assembly Conven'd—

The pettetion of a number of the freeholders & Inhabitants of the Town of Derry field Humbly Sheweth that the first Monday of March annually is appointed by Charter to be the day for chusing of Town officers for the currant year and the usual costom of s^{d} town hes ben to warn the Town of time and place and design of holding said Meeting with the several articles to be acted upon on s^{d} day of posting up a coppy of Warrant at three several places in said town viz. one at John Goffe Esq one at John Hall & one at Mr Russes at Nameskeeg which was a vote of said Town for warning Town meetings in said Town but so it was that neither of the places had any notification set up and one of them particularly Nameskeeg had no coppy set up in that part of the town so that they knew not the time of Day the meeting was to be held yet notwithstanding two of the select men and town clarke did contrary to former custom with about ten or a dozen of the Inhabitants and boys & unqualyfied persons did enter and in about five minutes time chouse all the principals offi cers for the town Notwithstanding one of the select men & the constable & several of the Inhabitants opposed them and told them it was not fair to hold the meetin before the Inhabitants came and that it was not the usual time of day that the meeting use to begin & that the Inhabitants that must pay the greatest part of the Taxes that shall come upon the town were not present—that they would be here presently yet they proceeded as aforesaid and at five minute's after eleven of the clock a considerable number came & in halfe an hour the Inhabitants chiefly came & upon hearing that the principal officers were chosen by a small number of Voters and many of them not quallified they concluded as that was the day by charter to chuse town officers, they being the largest part of the Quallified Voters belonging to said town maid proclamation that they were going to hold the town meeting & all were desired to attend and they went to the Meeting house and maid choice of a Moderator & Town clark & select men & all town officers & they were sworn to the faithful discharge of their duty as the Law directs so that their is two set of officers in said town which makes confusition we most Humbly therefore pray your Excellency & Honrs To Take our case under your wise consideration and grant that there may be a Regular town meeting in said town & that we may have town Officers chosen as the law directs and that our confusion may be brought into order and might be enabled to Raise the province taxes & mend high ways & do the necessary business of the town and that your Petitioners may bring in a bill for that end—& your petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray—

*Though this fact does not appear in its records, Derryfield, classed with Goffstown, voted for Judge Samuel Blodget of the latter town, who was elected the member to represent these towns in the Honourable House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire at their first session, begun and holden at Exeter on the third Wednesday of December, the sixteenth day, 1778.

A year later Goffstown appealed to the court for a separation, claiming that with nearly one hundred and fifty families they were entitled to separate representation. This petition was presented to the general court at Exeter, October 26, 1779, by Samuel Blodget, in behalf of the inhabitants of the town. *Great annoyance was given the colonists through the scarcity of a currency with which to carry on affairs. In this dilemma a system of barter became common, and which prevailed for a considerable period. Even the Indian's coin, "wampum," was at one period legal tender. Three of the shells of a fish called by him poquahock were considered equal to an English penny. A string of these six feet long was valued at five shillings. Later and more frequently the marketable products of the farmer were taken, these being enumerated in the tax list for a part or all of the sum assessed against the individual. If cash was paid, a discount of one fourth to one third was usually made.—Ed.

Letter from Col. John Goffe to Gov. Wentworth relative to Trespasses and some Sharp Practice at an Election in Derryfield, 1766.

Derryfield, Sept. 1st, 1766.

May it please your Excellency

I went at the Request of Masons Proprietors to the Society Land between Pettersborah & Hillsborah to see where the Trespassers had ben at work & whose Lots they had Improved upon & found they had cleared, at least cut a grate deal of Timber down, had built a camp upon Solly & Marches & on Meservey & Blanchards and your Excellencys Lots on the west side of Contucook River they have don a grate deal of work fenced it all In with a Considerable Good Runing fence have built a camp on it & altho' no body was their when we were their yet we are prity sure that Doct Perry is the man that has Trespassed upon your lot & petty it is that he should not be prosecuted as he Is the Ringleader of all the Rest, the [re], and as son as they Git to work again I have 2 men Ingaged to see them at work & acquaint me with their names.—The Land is Exceeding Good but I think your Excellencys is superior to any at that part of the Society Land and that maid them fellows Covet it it is certainly worth mony—I intended to have wated upon your Excellency when the Infer^{r} Cort set but I hurt my self when up their with heat and laying out in the Wet so that I have not ben well sence I came from their.—Your Excellency may Remember that we In Derryfield petitioned the Gen^{ll} Cort for an act to call a town meeting for the choice of town officers which when I cal'd John Hall with Col^{o} Barr who have strived all that is in their power to Injure me of late & at the meeting Col^{o} Barr cam on porpos to affront me & Col^{o} Barr Hiered voters for John hall with Large promises and Webster a Trader at Chester hall Hierd I have by good Information to come to Threaten his detters in town, if they did not vote for Hall he could not stay upon them &c, so that upon the whole with their Influence hall obtained eighteen voters be side him self and there was eighteen voters on the opposite side of the most substantial men in town so that when they had don all they could that could not git hall any office without voting for himself nor none that was chosen that day & several Rec^{d} Deeds from Col^{o} Barr & others that day to make them voters which I suppose held them no longer than that Night for I am confident they would not Trust them A shilling ever expecting to Git it.—And as soon as the meeting was over John Hall told Esqr Sheepard the moderator that he had Beat Goffe now & he would have a commission of the peace In spite of anybody that should oppose it for Col^{o} Bar & Maj Emerson and Mr Webster with his friends at the Bank would procure it for him—now may it please Your Excellency if such an Insulting fellow (for I have heard him Insult the whol Gover^{t}) many times and a man that has Live 30 or forty years upon a place & could never Raise half his provision, to Git that post would strive for to make mony by it and put the people into confusion for work he dont Incline to & is allway contriving unjust ways to maintain his luxery & I am very sure your Excellency never will Give a commission to a man that wants it for no other end than to Revenge and Git mony by it. Therefore I Beg your Excellencys favour that John Hall nor non for him may prevail in that Respect.*

I am your Excellencys most Humble
& Devoted Servant

[An act was passed by the legislature, March 23, 1776, entitled "An act to promote the Increase of the Fish called Alewives in Great Cohass Brook in Derryfield," which contained the following provision:

"And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that each & every Person, owning or improving any Mill Dam on said Brook, shall from the first day of May to the fifteenth day of June in every year from & after the passing & during the continuance of this act keep a sluice open in each Dam, to the end that the said Alewives may pass & repass into & from the said Massabesec Pond, without interruption and in failure thereof every Person being owner or improver of such Dam or Dams as aforesaid, shall forfeit & pay for every offence the Sum of Ten Pounds."*

*The fishing at Amoskeag soon became of so much importance as to be deemed worthy of legislative protection. As the inhabitants increased in the adjacent towns, the demand for fish increased, and in the fishing season there was a constant throng of fishermen at the falls, day and night, so that the people of the town fancied that such a continued draft upon the fish would soon destroy them. Accordingly, they applied to the legislature for the enactment of a bill for the protection of the fish by limiting the time of taking them and many other restrictions. The application was successful. In 1776, the legislature passed the first "fish act" for the protection of fish in the Merrimack.—C. E. Potter.

Relative to being classed for Representative, 1780.

State of New Hampshire—

To the Honble the Council & Gent^{n} of the Honble House of Representatives in Genl Assembly at Portsmouth convened 13th October 1780.

The humble Petition of the several Persons whose names are hereto set, and subscribed, Inhabitants of Derrifield in the County of Hillsborough, and State aforesaid.

Sheweth That pursuant to plan of Government, the said Town of Derrifield was annexed to Goffestown, for the purpose of chusing annually a person to represent them in General Assembly which Union has turned out to be a great Grievance and highly inconvenient to Derrifield.

That Your Pet^{rs} conceive Goffestown to consist of 100 families, and therefore not needing the Aid of Derrifield, whilest the latter contains little more than 50 families, And consequently in every Choice as aforesaid must (if the Inhabitants co^{d} possibly be present) be overpowered by numbers, and outvoted And therefore not fairly represented.

But may it please Your Honors, so it is, that frequently the said Inhabitants of Derrifield cannot be present at such Choice as the same is by precept always at Goffestown & at a time of Year when many times they cannot pass the River Merrimack without peril of their Lives.

That your Pet^{rs} are sensible, that they cannot stand alone in representation, but as they are informed by their Neighbors, Inhabitants of Litchfield, that they also conceive themselves to be under Circumstances somewhat similar to the above, with respect to Nottingham West, and that they also are about to apply to Yo^{r} Hon^{rs} for relief

Your Pet^{rs} for the Causes aforesaid, pray leave to bring in a Bill, whereby they may be declared Seperate from said Goffestown and joined in future to said Litchfield for the purpose aforesaid.

And shall ever pray &c—
